WILL TELL WORLD OF LAKE REGION

Beauty of Antioch and Environs No Longer to Be Secret, Business
Club Agrees.

BETTER TRANSPORTATION PROMISED BY SOO LINE

If this world is not told of Progressive Antioch and the wonderful and beautiful environs surrounding the "hub of the lake region," it will be no fault of the Antioch Business Club, members of that body agreed at the Club dinner Monday night. More than thirty members attended the meeting and dinner held at the M. E. Church where an excellent spread was set before the banqueters by the ladies of the church.

The occasion was enlivened by a number of songs, both old and new, led by Pastor A. M. Krahl, and all joined heartily in the singing. The music and the delicious repast served by the Methodist ladies put the crowd in a happy and peppy frame of mind for the lively business session which followed.

Advertising Is the Thing.

"Here we are right in the midst of one of the most beautiful lake regions in the world, surrounded by every recreational facility, with Antioch, the hub of the entire region, within easy commuting distance from Chicago, yet every year thousands upon thousands seeking the very things we have to offer, pass within a stone's throw of some of the most beautiful lakes in the world, and they know it not," said a well known business man who explained the pressing need of advertising the locality.

An elaborate map to be printed in colors and spotting the scores of lakes and other places of interest in the region, is the idea of Frank R. King, local druggist, who has ever been a booster for advertising this locality and its many advantages. The map idea is not new, however, as J. C. James, Antioch realtor, has prepared and distributed at his own expense thousands of maps of the region and he is considered the pioneer of this form of advertising. Mr. James was highly complimented for his efforts when it was learned that had distributed over ten thousand maps of the region during the past three years.

A committee of five, headed by Mr. King, was appointed to map the region and make arrangements for the printing. It is planned to have the maps put up in folder form, similar to the popular style of auto road maps, and the cover pages to carry valuable information regarding the locality in addition to the individual advertising message of those who distribute the folders.

Mr. King's plan met with universal approval among the business club members, as it offers the best means of acquainting the stranger with the region, with just a glance at the map.

Gas Tax Discussed.

The proposed gasoline tax that is now occupying the minds of Illinois legislators at Springfield, came in for a round of discussion at the meeting Monday night, but it was agreed that any action taken by the Club, pro or con, would not be loud enough to be heard at Springfield. The discussion, however, brought out the fact that the gasoline tax will be necessary if Lake county residents expect to see the completion of the highways designated as state routes to be paved under the $100,000,000 bond issue, as over half of that money has already been expended to complete the $60,000,000 bond issue roads, and there remains enough of the last bond issue money to build approximately seven miles of highways in each of the 102 counties of Illinois. Voters generally had the understanding that the voting of the $100,000,000 in bonds would be a sufficient amount to build all the highways designated, but notwithstanding any promises made by the present state administration, the fact remains that the sum is inadequate, just as the $60,000,000 bond issue was insufficient for the purpose intended, and any voter who ever believed any different.

P. T. A. Meeting Monday Night

The next regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher association will be held at the grade school building Monday night, Feb. 7, at 7:30 o'clock. The committee has prepared an excellent program and all parents and friends are invited to attend.

Another of the delightful vanishing parties being sponsored by the P. T. A. was given at Somerville's restaurant Tuesday night. A large crowd attended and all reported a fine time.

Mrs. Johannah Johnson Died This Morning

Sudden Death Claims 75 Year Old
Lady at 4:30.

Mrs. Johannah Johnson, wife of the late Edward F. Johnson, died very suddenly early today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Horan on Orchard street, where she had been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Van Patten, for the past several months.

Mrs. Johnson seemed to be in her usual good health last evening when she retired about 10:30. Early this morning members of the household were awakened to find Mrs. Johnson very ill, and her demise occurred at 4:30 o'clock before a physician arrived.

Despite her 75 years, Mrs. Johnson had always enjoyed usually good health, and her sudden death this morning was a shock to all her many friends. For ten years she was a resident of this locality, having made her home in Antioch and also in Lake Villa. She was born in Ontario, Canada, Nov. 22, 1852. Before her marriage she was Miss Johannah Marion Swift. Mrs. Johnson was the mother of eleven children, three of whom survive: one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Van Patten, and two sons, James and A. E. Johnson, both of Ontario, Canada. Her husband preceded her in death some years ago.

County Coroner, J. L. Taylor could not be reached early today, but later announced that the inquest would be held late today or Friday forenoon. Word is being awaited from the sons in Canada before announcing funeral arrangements.

CLUB WOMEN TO HOLD INSTITUTE

The Tenth District, I. F. W. C., will conduct a Club Institute at The North End Club on Wednesday, Feb. 9th, at 1:30 p. m.

Mrs. William F. Farrell, President of the District, will preside, and the program includes talks on interesting and vital subjects.

Mrs. George Plummer, State Parliamentarian, will speak on "Standardization."

The subject "Committees" will be presented by Mrs. Samuel Snow, President of the Ninth District and an authority on her subject.

Mrs. Clarence Goodwin will talk on "Finances." Mrs. Goodwin is a speaker of note and well qualified to handle this important topic.

A question box in charge of Mrs. George W. Plummer will be an outstanding feature of the program, and Mrs. Plummer will answer questions of any club problems.

Luncheon will precede the program, and will be served at twelve o'clock.

All Club women are cordially invited to attend both the luncheon and the institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Nixon Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nixon entertained about twenty-five guests at their home Sunday night. Five-hundred was played and after a delicious luncheon many other amusing pastimes were indulged to the great enjoyment of all present.

The guests are still wondering just how John C. does the crystal gazing act. Perhaps his assistant, the "Genial Bob" Morley could enlighten them on the subject if he chose to do so. But Robert is loyal if he is anything and the secret will perish with him.

The guests departed at a late hour, declaring Mr. and Mrs. Nixon real entertainers.

Sam Wesley transacted business in Kenosha on Monday.

FOUR INVOLVED IN BUSINESS CHANGE

Frank J. Hunt Sells Equipment to

Richard Macek and Retires
From Business Here.

Hillebrand and Shultis to Occupy
Hunt Building—Hennings Surrenders Lease.

A business change involving four local firms was made Wednesday when Frank J. Hunt sold the equipment from his recreation parlor here to Richard Macek. The four bowling alleys, billiard tables and soda fountain and equipment are being moved to Mr. Macek's Antioch Palace, the wonder recreation auditorium and dance pavilion that is nearing completion a mile south of town on highway No. 21. Arrangements for the purchase of the equipment by Mr. Macek were made several weeks ago when Mr. Hunt announced his intention to discontinue business here.

The Hunt building has been leased to the firm of Hillebrand and Shultis, general merchants, who are preparing to move to the new location within the next few weeks. The interior will be redecorated and the building will be fitted to meet the special requirements of their large stock of merchandise. A stock reducing sale has been in progress at the store for the past three weeks. The firm has been in business in their present location, the Thayer building, for the past fifteen years.

Hennings Surrenders Lease.

Difficulties incident to the business change arising through a lease held by C. E. Hennings, who has operated a soda fountain and cigar stand in the Hunt building for the past year, were cleared and a satisfactory settlement agreed upon by Messrs. Hennings and Hunt Tuesday evening. For a certain consideration, amount of which was not made public, Mr. Hennings surrendered his lease, thereby enabling Mr. Hunt to make delivery of the equipment sold to Mr. Macek and give possession of the building to Hillebrand and Shultis. Through the transaction Mr. Hennings has acquired the agency for the Chicago daily papers, and until further notice he will make his agency headquarters at the Nixon Candy Shop.

Mr. Hunt has not announced his plans for the future.

EXPECT RULING ON SWAMP LAND CASE SOON

Hundreds of acres of public lands will be added to the summer playgrounds and hunting grounds in the Lake region of Northern Illinois if the state of Illinois wins a victory in its case against one Frank W. Hatch and others, Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom stated recently in a portion of his biennial report to Governor Len Small.

Suit to restrain Hatch and others from taking possession of 700 acres in what formerly was the bed of Pistakee Lake in Lake county, now is pending in the Lake county circuit court, and the testimony is "almost concluded," the report states.

This is a case that has been dragging along for several years and involves what has developed into what now is regarded as valuable land although at one time it was regarded as next to worthless. Mr. Hatch and others claim that their possession dates back many years. Much interest is being shown in the case for the verdict will affect many thousands of acres of similar land in the state. Whichever way the court decides it is figured that the matter will be carried into the highest courts for a final settlement. The attorney general is giving his personal attention to the case.

Mrs. Chas. Powles, Mrs. Lester Osmond and Mrs. B. F. Naber entertained a number of ladies at cards at the home of Mrs. Naber on last Saturday afternoon. The afternoon was very pleasantly spent playing "500", there being twenty ladies present. Late in the afternoon a delicious luncheon was served. The party was given for the benefit of the Antioch Woman's Club.

ANTIOCH NOW IN THE FOR FIRST PLACE

Antioch and Palatine are now tied for first place in the Northwest Conference, each team having won six games and lost one.

Antioch was able to gain this tie by winning two Conference games the past week while Palatine did not play any Conference games.

On Friday night Antioch journeyed to Barrington and won a double header. The second team winning 22 to 11 and the first winning 24 to 19. This was the first time Barrington's second team has suffered defeat and their first team tried to make up for it but failed by a small margin.

Antioch had an easy game the first half and ran up a 14 to 7 score but in the second half Barrington came back strong and almost gained a tie before Antioch started scoring again.

At the end of the third quarter Antioch held a 16 to 15 lead and the remainder of the game was bitterly fought with Antioch holding her one point advantage until just before the end of the game Schwenk and Shummes sank long baskets to give the locals a five point advantage.

Leyden Township High School, of Franklin Park, came to Antioch on Tuesday night and the locals had an easy time winning by the score of 27 to 12.

Spicer was going strong in this game and collected 7 baskets while Schwenk connected 4 times and Wilcox three.

Several of the boys on the light-weight squad got into this game and they put up a scrappy game.

On Friday night of this week Antioch goes to Arlington Heights for two games and they will be hard ones for the only defeats that Antioch has suffered were at the hands of Palatine in two early season games. They have defeated both Libertyville and Warren and will give the locals one of their hardest games of the season.

On Tuesday night, Feb. 8, Richmond will be here for a return game and they will give Antioch a much harder game than they did at Richmond for they have regained the services of two of their regulars who were out of that game.

The remainder of Antioch's schedule is as follows:

Feb. 4, Arlington Heights, there.
Feb. 8, Richmond, here.
Feb. 9, Leyden, there.
Feb. 11, Wauconda, here.
Feb. 15, Arlington Heights, here.
Feb. 15, Libertyville, here.
Feb. 22, Palatine, there.
Feb. 25 and 26, Conference Tournament.
March 5, Warren, here.
March 10, 11, and 12, District Tournament.

Farmers' and Women's Institute Here Friday

Dr. Card, Country's Greatest Poultry
Specialist, to Speak.

BANQUET FRIDAY EVENING.

The poultry industry around Antioch and the balance of the county has progressed to such a point where, in order to make further progress, considerable specializing must be done.

With this in mind, Dr. Card, greatest poultry specialist in the United States; was secured for the Farmers' Institute that is to be held at the Antioch Township High School Friday afternoon at 1:30. Those who miss hearing Dr. Card will be sorry and many of their losses this summer may be laid directly to not practicing some of the things Dr. Card may say.

Mr. Everingham who has appeared on many programs in this county will also appear on the program.

The women from the rural districts and from the village will meet with Mrs. Dow, formerly President of the Illinois Women's Clubs. Those who have heard Mrs. Dow say she is certainly worth while listening to at any time.

Poultry Association Banquet.

Alec Hughes, who is to act as toastmaster at the Banquet Friday evening, says there will be a good time for everybody who comes.

Entertainment will be provided that will help digest the best dinner ever served. Dr. Card will stay over and address the gathering. It is hoped that all the Poultry Association members will attend. Bring the ladies. The Woman's Club of Antioch will serve.

VANPATTEN'S HAVE SILVER WEDDING SURPRISE PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. John Van Patten were married twenty-five years ago, January 14, in Antioch, Illinois, but they celebrated their silver wedding in Chetek, Wis., last Thursday by being treated to a surprise party given by a company of friends. They have lived here twenty-four years. The guests played Bridge and Five Hundred, and now and then entered into a discussion of the trials and tribulations of married life, but everything ended happily. A nice luncheon was served at 12 o'clock, after which Mr. and Mrs. Van Patten were presented with an appropriate silver gift. Those present then departed for their several homes. It was 25 below, too, but no one noticed it.—Chetek Alert.

JUSTIFY BEATING THROUGH VERDICT

Samuel Armstrong, of Loon Lake, last Thursday was acquitted by a jury in Justice Hervey Coulson's court where he had been brought on a charge of assault and battery. The warrant was issued at the request of his divorced wife, Minnie, who claims she received a beating at his hands when she came to visit the children. Armstrong testified that she cursed and abused him and the jury apparently believed Armstrong justified. He was represented by Attorney Harold Hansen.—Libertyville Independent.

JUDGE TAYLOR IS AGAIN CANDIDATE

Walter A. Taylor, police magistrate in Waukegan for the past eighteen years, Wednesday made a formal announcement that his "hat is in the ring" and that he is a candidate for re-election to that office.

DAIRYMEN ARE OPTIMISTIC

Company May Be Organized and Officers Elected Tuesday at Special Meeting.

"There will be an important meeting of milk producers of Antioch district at the Danish Hall, Antioch, Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 1:30 o'clock sharp. If dairy interests are sufficiently represented at this meeting it is possible that organization of the new company may be effected and officers and trustees elected for the ensuing year."

Thus reads a message being mailed this week to practically every milk producer in this section by Committee Chairman Chas. Glassman, who has been one of the foremost in leading the move to secure a home market for local dairymen.

Definite action at the Tuesday meeting is almost imperative, as the option for the purchase of the Broxham dairy property here will expire February 17. Application for a charter for the company, which is to be known as the Antioch Farmer's Dairy Company, with a capital stock of $15,000, is now in the hands of Secretary of State Louis Emmerson at Springfield. The necessary papers were drawn and signed at a meeting of the committee Friday. Attorney Behenna of Waukegan, being counsel for the dairymen.

Dairymen have ever been at the mercy of the dealers, and marketing conditions during the recent years, owing to difficulties arising through the T. B. test, have made dairymen an unprofitable business. Mr. Glassman explained when discussing the subject yesterday, "Farmers can have a voice in the matter only when they speak collectively."

Mr. Glassman said, "and right now, with the opportunity at hand for local producers to own their own plant with a steady and reliable market assured, there is no reason why dairymen here should not look upon the situation with optimism."

Serving on the committee with Mr. Glassman, and very active in the interests of dairymen, are Bert Bown, Frank Hatch and H. S. Messager.

Wheaton Man Tells Of Herd Improvement In Du Page County

"Feeds and Feeding" Next Topic At Evening School.

Mr. Corncross, farm leader of DuPage County, spoke to an audience of 75 dairy farmers and agriculture students at the Dairy School Course held last Monday at the Antioch Township High School.

His topic, "Herd Improvement," was forcefully presented. Mr. Corncross gave figures showing that a cow giving only 3500 pounds of milk a year produced a profit of only one half of a cent per pound; while a cow giving 11000 lbs. of milk produced it at a profit of one and a half cents per pound. This shows that not only does the total income increase when you have a good cow, but the profit per pound of milk also increases.

"One-third of the cows are kept at a loss; one-third break even; and the balance make a profit. Kept together, in most cases, there is an even break. By getting rid of the two-thirds that are bad, one can become prosperous keeping only the last one-third says Corncross."

Next Monday, Mr. Grabenhofer of Decatur, Illinois, will begin the study of feeds and feeding. Every one who is interested in feeding his cattle at a profit should attend the next few meetings.

It is the opinion of those present last Monday that many missed a real opportunity in not hearing Mr. Corncross.

Union Free High School Notes

Wilmot increased its string of victories to four straight last week at the expense of Watford and Williams Bay. The victory over Watford is doubly impressive because it was won on the Watford floor. At the start of the game Chuck Jurevick, still at guard, had not yet put in appearance, and with the absence of Runyard because of sickness, things looked blue for Wilmot. Watford immediately ran up a lead of five points, and appeared to be well on the road to an easy victory nearly all her life. She has victory in the middle of the second quarter. Clark appeared and was rushed into the game immediately. His presence put life into the team, and a battle royal followed, the lead alternating throughout the second half. With one minute to play, Watford led, but with a sudden spurt of speed, Captain Mac, Frank and Jurevick each sunk a basket, and the game was over. It was a victory well earned.

On Friday night the boys played ragged ball against Williams Bay. They seemed "cocksure" of themselves, and time after time the wily Bay boys slipped through the defense for a basket. Had Wilmot been up against a better team the story might have been different. The one encouraging thing about the game was the way Captain Mac and Leding broke into the scoring column, each netting three baskets.

Friday night Union Grove High school will be met for the second time on the home floor. A much better game is anticipated than last time because the Grove will be strengthened by the addition of three new men. The Silver Lake team, which to date has lost but one game, will play the preliminary game, as usual.

The volleyball league began with the boys on Monday, and will continue for about six weeks. The teams are the Kangaroos, Hyenas, Giraffes and Alligators and are captained by John Freeman, Ernest Schateen, Norton Bassett, and Lyle Pacey. The teams in the girls' league are the Gumps, Boots and Buddies, Moon Mullins and Orphan Anules.

Monday evening the Cavaliers held their first initiation of new members. All of them escaped serious injury, when eleven boys became members. Before the meeting the boys were served a supper by the Poppers.

The World We Know

No man's world is any larger than the man himself. That which his eye can see, his ear can hear, his heart can feel, make up for him the universe. For no man has anything he can't use. What good is money to a hotheaded, or a magnificent picture to an idiot? The whole world for you lies under your own hat, and it is just as large and just as varied as your own mind will let it become.—

Beginning of the End

When you have reached the period of existence when you have become unbiased, unprejudiced and open-minded, then you will hear members of your family say that all has been done for you that science knows, and the papers will give an account of your funeral rites within a short time.

To the Wondering Vehicle Tax Payer of Antioch:

The street and alley committee members are still ready to perform their duty. The "tax payer" has forgotten that the village has paid out over $500 for surveying Lake street preparatory to the paving to keep him out of the mud next summer; and he has also forgotten that about $600 has been paid out for oiling the streets during the summer, besides paying for catch-basins, tiling and repaving.

If any of our tax-payers want to know where the money is gone please call at the Town Hall or the Clerk's office and get account of every dollar.

CONVICTED SLAYER DIFFICULT TO HOLD

Escapes Four Times From Prisons in South.

Nashville, Tenn. Jail officials here have a flux in the person of one John Revinsky, sentenced to 21 years in prison for killing and robbing Mae Goodwyn, a wealthy underworld queen.

Revinsky just will not stay confined no matter where he is placed. For ten years Tennessee authorities have been trying to make John serve his term. But, apparently, there isn't a jail in the South that will hold him.

It was ten years ago that the murder was committed and the man was held for trial. The date for the trial came, but John was not to be found. He had escaped Nashville's best jail. Months later he was recaptured, tried, and sentenced.

While waiting to be taken to prison he led a jail break and escaped again. Two years passed. He was arrested once more in Alabama. But when Tennessee police arrived for him he was gone, having sawed his way through the iron bars.

For seven years Revinsky roamed the country, making a wooden thumb to replace one shot off during a jail break. Then he was caught in San Francisco, Calif. Taking no chances, police shackled him hand and foot and sent him direct to Nashville.

A few nights ago, while all was quiet there, he carefully dug his way through a stone wall and escaped with 13 other prisoners. All of these were recaptured except Revinsky and a new friend, Pete Berlerio, bandit.

5th Sunday after Epiphany.

8:00 Holy Communion.

8:30 Agape.

9:30 Sunday School.

10:30 Morning Prayer.

The celebration of the Patronal Festival was most successful. Mr. Dixon recalled the noble and thrilling life and death of St. Ignatius, the second Bishop of Antioch in the first century. In the evening the Choir of Christ Church inspired all with the ring of their harmony symbolic of that ideal harmony of the Christian life. They had to hurry away due to train connections. Dr. Evans the Choir Master has promised that after Easter they will visit us again and sing the oratorio, "From Olivet to Calvary." We had the great pleasure of having the good people of the Methodist Church join us in the festive service. Christians love each other even tho they are not perfect. The Church is truly a haven for sinners and a school for saints.

Fr. Gwyn will celebrate the Holy Communion next Sunday morning and it is hoped that many may take advantage of the opportunity to meet in the Sacramental Presence. Breakfast will be served in the Parish House for those who wish to remain. This is especially for the convenience of the members of the Church School.

Mr. Dixon has been attending the Annual Diocesan Convention at St. James' Church, Chicago, and will report the Convention at the morning service.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"LOVE" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, January 30.

The Golden Text was from 1 John 4:8, "He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself; is not puffed up; both not behave itself uncomely; seeketh not her own; is not easily provoked; thinketh no evil; rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Charity never faileth" (1 Cor. 13:4-8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The vital part, the heart and soul of Christian Science, is Love. Without this, the letter is but the dead body of Science,—pale, cold, inanimate" (p. 113).

Hearsay Information

People in our town are not able to travel much, but are good listeners when anyone returns from a trip, and pick up about as much information as there is to be had. PROLOGUE. While dependent over the enforced hiding of her name, Jim Dallas, slayer of a defense of Homer Parkhouse, brother of an influential family, Sybil, sister of a famous actress, is engaged to play Viola in a short story performance, "Twelfth Night," on the Gulf Island on the Maine coast. In the company are Sybil's famous friend, Anne Tracy, actress brother Jim, young waiter, and Anne's brother, an actor, who is engaged to play.

CHAPTER I

The performance was over and the audience was dispersing. Some of them had gone into the house, taken the chance to have a look at it when the Driscolls were "in residence," you couldn't so much as put your foot on the rocks round the shore. Others lingered, having a farewell word with the actors, congratulating them—it was the right thing to do and they deserved it. The committee was very affable, shaking hands with Mr. Bassett, the director and Miss Saunders, the star, who, in her page's dress with the paint still on her face, looked tired poor girl, but was so sweet and unassuming.

The fleet of boats, rocking gently on the narrow channel that separated Gulf Island from the mainland, took on their freight and dived off. They started in groups, then broke apart. The launches skidded, light-winged, the white flurry of their wakes like threads that stretched back to the island.

Part of the flutina carried the Hayworth villagers—all-year residents of the little town on the mainland. Some of the more solid citizens were in the launch that old Gabriel Harvey owned, which had been used by the actors in their week's stay. Hayworth had gathered a great deal of information about these spectacular visitors, some from Gabriel and some from Sara Phillips, who was Mr. Driscoll's housekeeper. Early in the morning she came over to Hayworth to deliver a letter, which she had been waiting for two days.

Now at the Hayworth school had had a good deal of the actors. The school committee, of which Sara Phillips was a member, had been very anxious to have the actors in their week's stay. Hayworth had gathered a great deal of information about these spectacular visitors, some from Gabriel and some from Sara Phillips, who was Mr. Driscoll's housekeeper. Early in the morning she came over to Hayworth to deliver a letter, which she had been waiting for two days.

"I don't see how you could have found her," said the boy who was Viola's twin brother, Miss Tracy's brother, and Sara had said he and Miss Saunders didn't get on well, she could see it. "Don't they don't," he said. And he went up the hill to the town where his wife was more interested in the play than in personages.

disturbance in the atmosphere, and come upon evidences of internal discord.

That was at the last rehearsal, when the people Viola had lost her temper like an ordinary woman and jumped on the Tracy boy—something about the place he stood in—nothing as far as Sybil could see, to get mad about. And the boy had answered in kind, like the spitting of an angry cat. An angry scene that the director had to stop.

Then the man Stokes who played the Duke, a handsome, romantic looking chap—something was the matter with him. He had a haunted sort of look, as if his mind was disturbed, especially when he'd turn his eyes on Miss Saunders. His wife—the woman they called Flora—was on to him. Sybil saw her watching him, sliding from under her eyelids, the way you watch a person when you don't want them to see it.

The photographer was sensitive to emotional stress and he felt it here—below the surface—and was moved to curiosity.

The photographs were finished and the group broke up. Miss Saunders and Miss Tracy linked arms and moved off toward the headlands. Breeding in the amber light they were like a picture from some antique romance—the noble lady and her page. One thin narrow casings of crimson brocade the other in short swinging kilt and braided jacket of more sober gray. Sybil, fascinated, watched them passing slowly over the burnished grass. He turned to go and saw that Stokes was watching them, too, intent like a hungry dog, the hand that held a staff of leathern grass against his lips trembling.

The photographer shouldered his camera and went toward the house. He skirted the side balcony, the white flung doors giving a glimpse of an entrance hall, and turning the corner emerged upon the land front of the long, capacious building. Hayworth showed across the channel in a clustering of gray roofs from which smoke streams rose straight into the smoke-rimmed sky. The water rushed in a swollen tide, threads of white dimpling eddies, telling of its noisily speed.

The door on this side of the house opened directly into the living room. No hall within or porch without intervened with the view; the path ended unobtrusively at the foot of two broad steps that led to the threshold. On the lower of these steps Sybil found a lady sitting smoking an cigarette. This was the Marjorie of the east. Mrs. Cornell in private life. Sybil had found her as easy as himself, good humoredly inquisitive and not involved in the prevailing discord. An adult able person to clear up mysteries. He sank down beside her on the step and took the cigarette box she slipped toward him.

"Wouldn't you think," she said, "a man as rich as this fellow would fix up round here better?"

Sybil, who had artistic responses, had long learned not to intrude them on the uninitiated.

"I guess he liked it wild," he suggested, and lit a cigarette.

Shine had been in the grove of pines, a growth of stunted trees filling in a hollow. He had followed the path through it, up the slope to the summer house and beyond to where the bluff dropped away in a sheer cliff to the channel. They called the place "The Point" as it projected beyond the shore line in a rocky outthrust shoulder, gulfs circling about it, water seething below. He looked there now, let his glance slip along the curve of headlands till it reached the two girls, perched on a boulder like a pair of bright-plumaged birds. He was thinking how to approach the matter in his mind, when Mrs. Cornell went on:

"I don't see what anyone wanted to build a house here far-out of this way. It's too lonesome. With the tide at the full as it is now you can't get ashore without a motor boat. You know that current's something fierce."

He looked down at it, its rustling corded surface purple dark:

"Looks to be some current."

"It would carry you out and 'Good night' to you. Gabriel who runs the launch told me. Set's right out to sea some way. And the rise and fall to it—I couldn't tell you how many feet it is, but you'll see for yourself tonight if you're awake—all the channel here, nothing but rocks and mud. And across the middle of it to Hayworth, a causeway. That's the only way you can get ashore at low tide. High or low you're pretty well marooned. It's secluded, all right, if that's what you're after."

Shine was after information and with the talk running on tides and causeways he saw no chance of getting it. So he tried to divert the garrulous lady:

"That's Miss Saunders and Miss Tracy out there looking at the sun set."

Mrs. Cornell answered with emphasis:

"Yes, they're friends."

"Aren't you all?"

"Some of us knew each other before we came here," was her cryptic reply. Then she added pensively: "Six months ago you'd never have found Sybil Saunders looking at a sunset. She was the brightest thing!"

"Awful misfortune that what happened to her."

She gave a derisive sound at the inadequacy of the word:

"Hah—awful! Took the heart right out of her. If you ever saw a girl in love it was she—bound up in him. Everything ready, the wedding day set, the trousseau made. Tears rose in her eyes and she dove into her tight-fitting bodice for a handkerchief. 'Never to be worn, Mr. Shine—that's life.'"

Shine gave forth sympathetic murmurs and Mrs. Cornell, dabbling at her eyes, furnished data between the dabs:

"Two men drinking too much and then a fight, and before anybody knew, murder. If there hadn't been a brass bandstand near Jim Dallas' hand it would never have happened. Honest to God, Mr. Shine, there was nothing evil in that young man. But the Parkhouse family are camped on his trail. The evil's in them, if you ask me, with their rewards and detectives."

"I wonder if she knows where he is."

"I guess there's more than one woman after that," the lady murmured.

Shine looked at the page's figure on the rock. She carried the thing stamped on her face. He had noticed it particularly where he had taken the photographs of her in the living room. Once or twice the mask had been dropped and he had seen the drooping lines, the weariness, and something like fear on the delicate features.

For a space they smoked in silence. Round the corner of the house the tall figure of Stokes strolled into view. At the sight of them he nodded, walked down to the wharf and dropped on a bench.

Shine lowered his voice:

"What's the matter with him?"

Mrs. Cornell met his eyes, her own were narrowed and sharp.

"What makes you think anything is?"

"His whole makeup something's wearing on him."

She blew out a long snout of smoke and, watching it, murmured:

"Yes, it's out on him like a rash. He's crazy about Sybil. If you want to know what's the matter with him."

"Oh!" It came with an understanding inflection, the haggard glances rising on Shine's memory.

"Can't hide it, doesn't want to hide it. There's no shame in him tracking after the girl. And it's not as if he got any encouragement. She can't bear him; that's why she has Anne Tracy out there, afraid if she sits alone five minutes he'll come tapping up. You'd think if he didn't have any pride he'd have some feeling for his wife. She's half crazy with jealousy, burning up with it. These purple patches are all right in looks, Mr. Shine, but believe me they're not comfort able to live with."

"I felt it."

"I guess you would, it's in the air. All of us cooped up in this place where you can't get off. Sybil and Joe Tracy ready to fight at the drop of the hat and Flora going round in circles and Stokes like one of those fireworks that starts spitting and you don't know whether they're going to explode or die on you. I tell you I'll be glad when we get out of here tomorrow morning."

There was a footfall in the room behind them and Mrs. Cornell turned to see who was coming.

"Oh, Flora," she said, "come on and take a look at the sunset. It's something grand."

The woman stepped out and stood beside them. She had changed her costume and her narrow blue linen dress outlined her too slender figure. Shine thought she would have been pretty if she had not looked so worn and thin. He noticed the brightness of her dark eyes, brilliant and quick moving as a bird's. There was red on her cheekbones, a flushed patch that was not rouge. Mrs. Cornell's expression recurred to him, "burning up"—the meager body, the hot high color.

the dry lips resolutely smiling, suggested inner fires.

"Yes," she answered, "it's a wonderful evening."

"Take a cig." Mrs. Cornell offered the box.

"Sit down, there's plenty of room," Shine moved up.

"No, I can't sit down. There's something about the air that makes you restless—too stimulating, maybe." She raised her voice and called to her husband, "Alex, aren't you coming in to change your clothes?"

Without moving, the man called back:

"Not yet. There's no hurry."

She turned to Shine with a little condescending air of wifely tolerance:

"Mr. Stokes has been shut up so long in town he can't get enough of the fresh air."

"He's enjoying the scenery, too," Shine answered, and saw her eyes travel to the two figures on the rock.

"Oh, that of course—that's the best part of it." Then in a tone of bright discovery: "Why, look where Anne and Sybil are! Have they been there long?"

"Ever since I've been here," Mrs. Cornell's voice was more than soothing, blithely reassuring as the voice of one who tells a child there is no ghost.

"And ever since Mr. Shine got through the pictures! Yawling in the beauties of nature like the rest of us."

"Won't you walk over, too?" Shine indicated the long unoccupied space on the step.

She shook her head:

"I like moving about. Something in this place gets on my nerves, it's like being in a jail." On a deep breath she shut out, "I hate it," and stepped back into the room.

"Going?" Mrs. Cornell called round to follow her retreating figure.

"Yes, I enjoy the scenery better when it hasn't got people in it."

They looked at each other; a still minute of eye communication.

"She's all worked up," he murmured.

Her answer was to point to the two girls and then to Stokes:

"Now she'll keep her eye on them from somewhere else probably the side piazza. That's the way you are when you're jealous—the sight of it kills you and you can't stop watching."

Lord! whispered Shine into whose life no such gnawing passions had entered. And he thought of the girl in the page's dress who was afraid to sit alone, and the man on the wharf brooding within sight of her, and the woman who was hovering round them like a helpless distracted bird.

Original Steeplechase

Steeplechase is a horse race in which the competitors have to surmount obstacles such as hedges and ditches, in order to reach the winning post. The first race of the kind was run in Ireland by a party of fox hunters, who actually made a distant church steeple the goal of the run. Such matches soon grew in favor, and steeplechasing became a recognized branch of horse racing.

Would Try

Not long ago the demon bought a horse and buggy and took his wife out one Sunday for a drive. They came to a neighboring town of Ossau and saw a sign which read: "Speed limit fifteen miles per hour." "Here, ma," said the demon excitedly, "you take the lines and drive, and I'll use the whip. Maybe we can make it."

Hoity-Toity!

There is a Picky Brained Pudding Cyprian in town destitute of public spirit, who, with a sneaking puerile vocabulary does try to discount the efforts of the editor behind his back. Let him be brave enough to bring his particular troubles face to face with the editor or crawl back into his shell, lay there and digest the venom of his spleen forever.—Red Lake (Ontario) Paper.

Efficiency

DOWN the road it travels, one of the most efficient things on wheels. Coils of wire are stored inside. Tools are in the snug lockers. Pike poles and shovels are in their racks. A big winch is bolted to its frame and there are pipes of steel from which to form a sturdy derrick.

Sometimes it draws a trailer loaded with long, straight poles. Sometimes it bears a heavy reel of cable. Often its load is men.

The telephone truck gets many a glance as it passes. For whether on the peace-time job of construction and maintenance or bound to where snow and sleet have made for it a battle ground, it means power, speed, efficiency, economy and human loyalty, united in the task of making telephone service better, broader, more dependable.
